Trunk-or-Treat Tonight!

The PTO is sponsoring the First Trunk or Treat at Ecole Saint-Landry on Friday October 29 from 6–8 PM.

Parents are invited to come out and decorate a trunk and hand out candy to the kids. Prizes will be given for best decorated trunk and best costumes. Parents can hand out candy without decorating a trunk, if they choose. There will also be a spooky hallway for our students to explore as well as other fun activities.

All Ecole St. Landry students and their siblings are welcome to come trick or treating.

New Students!

We welcomed three new students this month. Amelia M. and Makayla L. joined Madame Sandrine's Kindergarten class, and Bree M. joined Madame Maggie's 1st Grade class. It takes a lot of courage to join an immersion school mid-year, but they are catching up quickly and have already made a lot of friends.

Registration for the new school year will open January 1st. We only have 80 spots available, so be sure you tell your friends and family to be ready to send in their applications at the start of the new year.

Unity Day

October 20th was Unity Day. Schools all around America let students wear orange to show their support of the war against bullies made official by PACER in 2006. The National Bullying Prevention Center actively leads social change to prevent childhood bullying so that all youth are safe and supported in their schools, communities, and online. We swore orange to show our unity for kindness, acceptance, and inclusion, and to send a visible message that no child should ever experience bullying.

Mrs. Connie read stories in class about bullying, and had us each sign a link in an orange paper chain to signify our promise to never accept bullying.

Making Math a Family Thing

by Madame Maggie

Have you ever looked at your child's homework and thought, "Wow, this is definitely not what I was doing when I was their age." Kids today are coming into kindergarten with higher math skills than ever. A big component of why this could be is due to how families engage in young children's learning at home and around them.

This article gives suggestions to parents on how they can develop their child's math skills even more, and in the process, make math fun!

Bedtime Math

Madame Maggie also shared this link for a site called Bedtime Math that has really fun math ideas for both little children and big. They post a new idea every day, so from a wheel of Pringles to your weekend pancakes, the whole family can enjoy math activities together.

Toys and Play, Module 1

by Mrs. Connie

Our kindergarteners recently finished up their module on Toys and Play with making koala masks and rotating through centers where they played dress-up, played with puppets, built with blocks, and played with various toy food and kitchen items. They really enjoyed their day, and learned so much while "studying" toys. Even as they were working on speaking, listening, and writing skills, they were learning/reviewing such things as:

- Sharing and taking turns
- Taking care of toys and materials
- Putting things away
- Toys and games of long ago

Now it's off to our next module.....Weather!

Community Open House

Please join us on November 13th from 11 am to 2 pm for our Community Open House. Our teachers will be doing crafts and story times, there will be music and a crepes cooking demonstration, we'll have vendors for food and treats, including our own PTO's bake sale, and our Board and staff will be around to chat with you.

This event is open to the whole community, and we hope people will visit and want to talk to you as École Saint-Landry parents, and to your children as our students, about your experiences here. If you have friends and family who have been wanting to see the school, this is the perfect opportunity for them to visit.
